This article applies to the Private Practice Suite. Mozilla has released a new version of Firefox ESR (Version 60). This new version is not compatible with Microsoft Silverlight and does not support the Valant Private Practice Suite. The Java Plugin for web browsers relies on the cross-platform plugin architecture NPAPI, which had been supported by all major web browsers for over a decade. The 64 bit version of Firefox has never supported NPAPI, and Firefox version 52ESR is the last release to support the technology. It is below the security baseline, and no longer supported. Version also dropped support for PowerPC architecture, although other projects continued development of a PowerPC version of Firefox. Firefox was originally released for Mac OS X and higher.
